The Oxford House Manual® – Blueprint of Oxford House™

The individual Oxford House™ is the building block and foundation of the successful International Network of Oxford Houses. The Oxford House Manual® is the blueprint for the standardized processes and procedures used by each and every Oxford House. Part of the mechanism for assuring that each and every Oxford House follows the standard processes and procedures is an overall organization of Oxford House that assures timely transfer of knowledge and assurance of quality control – from the establishment of a new Oxford House through the formation of a state or regional Association and the annual Oxford House World Convention.

The basic organization of Oxford House is from the bottom/up. It is a grassroots organization. Tradition Five states that each individual Oxford House is autonomous. That means that once it gets its permanent charter the individual house can do whatever a majority of its members decide and it has one vote in the governance of the overall Oxford House organization. However, even with a permanent charter, the individual house has to follow the conditions of its charter and the other mutual support organizations of Oxford House such as chapters and regional/state Associations, have a responsibility to assure that it does. If the individual Oxford House violates its charter, it can lose it. The Board of Directors of Oxford House, Inc has granted sole authority for charter revocation for cause to Oxford House World Services and only Oxford House World Services. Of course, “for cause” never takes place if the individual house follows the rules and if mutual support organizations of Oxford House work with an individual house not in compliance with its charter so that it takes corrective action and gets back on track.

The best way to assure that every house stays on track is for chapters to effectively inform, train and assure quality of individual houses within their geographic areas. The best way for Chapters to stay up-to-date is to be trained and encouraged by State or Regional Associations.

State/Regional Association Organization

The Regional Association is democratically organized just like an individual Oxford House or Chapter. The membership of the Regional Association is made up of Chapter Chairpersons within the state or region, any resident or alumni World Council representative members residing within the state or region, one alumni member recommended by chapters [limited to one for every three chapters] and officers elected by the association members for the duration of their term of office.

Association Responsibilities

As a grass-roots, democratically-run organization Oxford House understands that important decisions come from the bottom of the organization up. It also understands that good quality control is essential for protecting the good name and reputation of Oxford House. An Oxford House State or Regional Association has as its primary purpose the assistance of Chapters within its area by providing training, technical support and assistance in expansion through the development of new houses.

Each Association has a three-fold mission: [1] internal knowledge transfer and quality assurance, [2] development to meet the need for Oxford House recovery beds to satisfy state or regional demand, and [3] public relations to educate the public about Oxford House.

Internal Knowledge Transfer and Quality Assurance Monitoring

Every Oxford House™ has either a temporary or permanent charter. The charter gives each individual house the right to hold itself out as an Oxford House, to use the Oxford House system of operation and to have an equal vote in decisions affecting Oxford House as a whole. The charter also places upon each Oxford House™ the duty to comply with the three conditions of each Oxford House charter: [1] the group must be democratically self-run following the standard process and procedures of the Oxford House Manual®, [2] the group must be financially self-supporting and pay all its bills on time, and [3] the group must immediately expel any resident who returns to using alcohol or drugs.

The Oxford House Manual® is the blueprint for each Oxford House to follow to comply with its charter and to assure that the residents can gain sobriety comfortable enough to avoid relapse. There is no magic way that the individuals living in an Oxford House can understand the processes and procedures set forth in the Oxford House Manual®. Learning the processes and procedures that for more than three decades have made Oxford Houses so successful requires knowledge transfer and explanation.

The primary way that such knowledge is transferred from experienced Oxford House residents and alumni to newcomers is at the individual house level. However, it is also transferred through training workshops and outreach workers in the field. The state and regional Oxford House Associations should exercise leadership in organizing training workshops, conferences and conventions to facilitate the sharing of knowledge about the Oxford House concept and system of operations. Knowledge transfer or training is an on-going necessity because within individual Oxford Houses and chapters there is always resident turnover. Newly recovering individuals are coming into Oxford Houses all the time and residents who have become comfortable in sobriety are always moving out. At the chapter level, the frontline for sharing strength, experience and hope, knowledge transfer should be constantly taking place among some of the residents. However, formalized workshops, conferences and conventions continue to be best practice for teaching the Oxford House process, procedures, practices and policies. Each Association should make training a top priority. Teaching newcomers the Oxpulsions because of relapse or non-payment of an equal share of expenses can inform a chapter or the Association about a house's understanding of the standard system of operations. Data about where residents lived just prior to an Oxford House can inform about whether a house is recruiting new members from a broad base. Data about length of sobriety can affirm the value of Oxford House living. Data about successful exits can affirm that Oxford House is a path to sobriety comfortable enough to avoid relapse.

The Association should make certain that useful data works its way up to it and then use it appropriately. The annual resident profile survey conducted by Oxford House World Services is an example of detailed data collection that provides a good benchmark for Associations to follow. However, monthly house activity reports are equally important. How many applications does each house receive each month? How many are accepted as residents? How many residents are asked to leave and why? How many residents leave voluntarily and how much sobriety do they have? All of this data helps to quantify demand and may show whether or not a particular house is on track. Associations should work closely with Oxford House World Services to make sure that it has up-to-date information about the houses in its region including applications, resident turnover and survey data related to resident profiles.

Duties of Association Officers

The duties of the State or Regional Association Officers are spelled out in the Association By-Laws. Remember that Officers are elected for a one-year term of office and may be re-elected but not for more than two consecutive terms. The Statewide Development of Oxford Houses Guidelines help State or Regional Associations to understand and work closely with Oxford House World Services which has the sole responsibility for training and supervising outreach workers employed to fulfill contracts or agreements with government agencies or foundations.

The individual Oxford House is at the foundation of the entire Oxford House worldwide organization. Each house has a charter. With that charter the house – not any individual or group of houses – has an individual vote to determine overall policies related to Oxford House as a whole. Each house has a vote to elect members of the Oxford House World Council – the organization that plays an important role in advising Oxford House, Inc. about overall policy choices affecting the organization, expansion and general policies of Oxford House. The organization is structured to assure that it remains a grassroots organization focused solely on improving the opportunities for long-term recovery from alcoholism, drug addiction and co-occurring mental illness.
